Virtual Group Service Guide

Teen Scientists

Teen Scientists is an interactive and recreational group designed for teens, 10-15 years old, wanting to explore the world of science. Each session the group will examine a scientific subject where participants will work together to brainstorm, conduct and discuss the results of an experiment. The group will incorporate socialization amoung peers while encouraging teens to participate in online games. This group will allow your child to practice virtual readiness skills (i.e., following group instructions in a virtual setting, attending to screen, etc.) and social and communicative skills on an online platform.
